BRRR! This year of 2014 has started off with extreme cold weather in early January. Temperature records across central and eastern Canada and the US have been broken or come close to being broken. These unusual weather patterns are being attributed to the wild swings of the Jet Stream, a stream of air that circles the northern part of the earth and drives many of our weather systems. A mass of cold polar air, called the Polar Vortex is being pushed south due to the Jet Stream. The Jet Stream is expected to continue with these wild swings, as the Arctic continues to warm due to global warming.

What many people have come to realise is that these extreme weather events, hurricanes, tornadoes, and rising temperatures are the result of an increase in green house gases, such as carbon dioxide and methane gas. The burning of fossil fuels contributes to the warming of the world, and the changing of our climate. (For a more detailed explanation of these changes, please see page 12.)

People do not want to hear that the climate is changing, and that because of this, the world is changing, too. But the evidence is there for all to see. Once realization sets in, people will respond in a number of ways. One is to not even think about it, just go about our daily business as usual. Another response is to begin to live more consciously, to make decisions with regard to the impact our decisions will have on the warming of the planet. Others will begin direct action, to convince government and industry to make changes that will lessen these impacts.

What will your course of action be as this new year begins?

Message from the Chief

I hope everyone had a great holiday season, spending it with friends and family. I have been busy through the holidays with strategic planning with council working on the short and long term goals of our community and how each council member will participate based on their strengths.

Manitou mountain protection plan meeting was successful in planning a direction on the next few years.

Our meeting with Michipicoten was also very successful in the discussion on next steps and relationship building between both of our great nations.

We worked on policies and codes as a team, and I found that council had worked very well in the approval of the election code to be sent to citizenship for ratification.

I hope to see participation from our citizenship in some of our new ventures and opportunities. We will be reaching out to community members over the next while to engage in providing input.

As always, I am always available, accessible and approachable. If you have any questions, please call me.

Chief Jason Gauthier

Messages from Council

Hello everyone!

Looking back at last month, December 2013 was a busy time for Council. Regular council meetings were held, additional conference calls were scheduled, and a face-to-face meeting with Michipicoten chief and council was attended in Sault Ste Marie.

January 2014 continues with the same energetic pace. Council business started early in the new year with a weekend session January 4 & 5th on strategic planning. Our discussions centred around priorities and future goals. An open band meeting scheduled for February is one of these goals and I look forward to this engagement with the Missanabie Cree membership. Portfolios

Watchay,

I have been very active working with council on so many different areas. I am sharing a lands and resources portfolio and have met with many different groups to work to protect our lands, waters and interests for Missanabie Cree First Nation.

I am learning so much and feel very passionate about the land and keep our children in the front of my mind in discussing the land with government and industry.

Hello Everyone,

The Chief & Council attended our 2nd Strategic Planning Session/Retreat and attended one other meeting with a consultant over the holidays for 2 days in Toronto. We discussed and decided what our priorities are and what we would hope to achieve for the next 3 years. This was our 2nd face to face meeting since August. We are still meeting once a week and did try the special meeting every other week approach so that we can give special focus to the Rama Requests and the Rama Policy and to prepare for the Pre-Consultation with Michipicoten.

We met with Michipicoten Chief & Council on December 12th to begin our relationship building and understanding of the shared territories. The Lovisek Report was shared with Michipicoten at this meeting at the advice of the lawyers. No legal representation was at this meeting were also discussed, and I will continue to hold the education portfolio.

The new year also brought change for Jean Sayers who started her new role as Band Manager on January 6th. Welcome Jean!

Also if one of your new year resolutions is to be more active in community, please do not hesitate to place your name forward for opportunities such as the recent call-out for Youth Representative or a board member of Missanabie Cree Development Corporation.

Until next time,
Victoria
MCFN Deputy Chief

I feel that we as council have strategically designed a strong plan for moving forward as a team, and look forward to many more successes from this very active and very passionate Chief and Council.

Hope to hear from you, and I love you all. I will continue to get involved and participate in everything I can.

Les Nolan aka Red Bear
MCFN Councilor

since it was a preliminary meeting to establish the family ties. We also scheduled a Land Transfer Finalization update for council but the presentation did not take place and another date has been set for the end of January. We also sat at the table with Tembec to discuss the Tri-partite agreement we have with MNR and Tembec on December 5.

We also met with MNR to discuss the Manitou Mountain Conservation Amendment. We are moving forward with this initiative and had a brainstorming session to set out for the next 3 years what will take place regarding Manitou Mountain. We also were invited to attend the North-east Superior Regional Chiefs Forum for a Governance Workshop to discuss a 2 year pilot project.

MCFN BAND MANAGER

Wachay and Hello to Missanabie Cree First Nation Members Happy New Year!

I hope you and your families had an enjoyable and fruitful Christmas and a happy beginning to the New Year.

As the recently hired Band Manager for the Missanabie Cree First Nation, I would like to introduce myself: my name is Jean Sayers and I am a Moose Cree band member, originally from Moose Factory but now residing in Garden River. I am married to William (Butch) Sayers. As a large blended family, my husband and I have eight adult children, sixteen grandchildren and one great grandson and another one on the way sometime in June.

Within the next month, I will be working with Chief Jason Gauthier and staff to get acquainted with all the priori ties, programs, personnel, reviewing the financial status of the organization, audits, budgets, policies and special projects and making contact with the federal and provincial organizations and agencies that do business with the Missanabie.

It is an honour and privilege to be working for the Chief and Council, staff and the membership so I will work diligently to do my best to meet the goals and objectives of the First Nation.

I look forward to gradually meeting the MCFN members in person or on the telephone and everyone who has a connection with, and an invested interest, in the future of the Missanabie Cree First Nation.

Meegwetch,
Jean Sayers

POST-SECONDARY EDUCATION OFFICER

Greetings Missanabie Cree Members,

It's been some time since I did a report regarding Post-Secondary Education. I am now working in the capacity of Post-Secondary Education Officer and no longer doing the Band Administrator work. I can now work on items that needed attention, such as reforming the Education Committee, reviewing and making changes to the post-secondary policy, updating contacts with colleges, universities, students, and working towards the education goals that came from the members during our community strategic planning session in August 2011.

I would also like to note that the reporting for the post-secondary funds has changed. The reporting is paperless and they require financial and education details for every semester while generating a summary of costs. The other interesting feature is that I can add supporting documents for each student funded and not to mention it is user friendly.

I will be updating the application for the 2014/2015 post-secondary funding. As soon as those are complete I will email to those that requested an application already.

For current students you can send in book/supply receipts for reimbursement.

If you are graduating from high school or are a mature student and interested in attending college or university, you should start the process of applying to post-secondary institutions of your choice.

Just a reminder that the deadline to apply for funding is June 13, 2014. So you should start the process and you should have all supporting documents in by our deadline for funding.

On a final note, I would like to welcome Jean Sayers, Band Manager to our office. I look forward to working with her.

Our first staff meeting with Jean was very informative and enlightening. We learned that Mathew Wesley has a Facebook page dedicated to the Cree language and he will have weekly language classes during work hours which staff are permitted to attend. I am excited to attend and learn.

If you require any information or help regarding post-secondary education, I can be reached by phone or email, 705-254-2702 ext. 227 or lrainville@missanabiecree.com

MCFN LAND USE PLANNER

January 13, 2014

Greetings, All My Relations:

As many of you know, I have been hired by Muskegowuk Council as a Land Use Planner to collect data from Missanabie Cree Elders and harvesters in our First Nation. I have worked in this position on a contract basis, which will be completed March 31, 2014.

This project has been funded by the Ministry of Northern Development and Mining with the understanding that the Traditional Knowledge of Use and Occupancy gathered by the First Nation will primarily identify the sites of occupancy in their territory and will further protect those sites from mining until there has been consultation with Missanabie Cree First Nation. And with this information it will be determined by Missanabie Cree, if they will allow mining or staking of claims in their territory.

Gathering of information through mapping interviews and questions regarding the harvesting of Birds (Partridge), Fish, Large Animals (Moose), Small Animals (Beaver), identifying Cultural & Sacred Sites, Vegetation Sites (Blueberries, Medicine Sites), possible Mineral locations, and land and water ways used by Missanabie Cree Families. This information was transposed on to maps using a code system during the interview process and then was further processed by a GIS mapping technique.

Thus far, this mapping process has shown that Missanabie Cree Used and Occupied their territory in the past and present.

The gathering of information was presented in workshops in Sault Ste Marie and at the Missanabie Cree annual gatherings. The gathering of information also included a screening process in which it was determined who had harvested on the land and water and who knew information about the occupancy of Members in the Missanabie Cree territory.

Unfortunately, there were Members who were not interviewed, because of distance or a lack of contact information and it may be possible that another form of gathering information may be initialized at a later date.

At this time, over 60 Members have been interviewed and between 3500 and 4000 reference points have been coded on maps. A Missanabie Cree First Nation, Traditional Knowledge Atlas of Use and Occupancy has been developed along with a map of the Traditional Territory of the Missanabie Cree and a larger scale map of the potential Reserve Lands of the Nation.

This information will be available the next annual gathering of the Missanabie Cree.

If you have any questions, please contact me at the Missanabie Cree office , (705) 254-2702. Or use the toll free number 1 (800) 319-3001.

REPORT ON NAN COMMUNITY READINESS TRAINING

Greetings my fellow members and Elders,

My name is Terri Nolan and I recently attended a Community Readiness Training session in Thunder Bay, ON sponsored by Nishnawbe Aski Nation.

We had a couple of awesome keynote speakers during this session and I have to say that I came home with more knowledge that I had previously thought I knew. Ida Copenance and Rene Boucher spoke to the class the first day on HIV and AIDS.

I am not ashamed to say that I always thought that HIV was originally contacted through human contact with monkeys/apes. To my surprise HIV can only be contacted through humans, as well as the sharing of needles, which I already knew. So the myth that human contact with monkey/apes is the where HIV virus originated from is just that, a myth.

I also learned that if left untreated you will eventually become sick with life threatening infections. This being the most serious stage of HIV and is called AIDS. This can happen over a span of years before the individual even realizes they are infected. Most commonly back in the late 70's - 80's when HIV reared its ugly head and back then we commonly knew it as AIDS and we would all die if we were in contact with anyone that had it. Thank God for research and technology today! Because of it more and more people are able to live a normal life. There is no cure for HIV but there is treatment. I am grateful I had the honour to listen to these 2 speakers who have put a lot of what I thought were just myths to rest.

On the 2nd and 3rd day Linda Stanley, PhD Research Scientist from Colorado State University graced us with a day and a half of packed full of information on how to identify and define issues within our communities with an overview of the Community Readiness Training model.

I was quite impressed with her model as it could be adhered to any problem within communities out there. Be it, drug/alcohol addictions, gambling, abuse, HIV/AIDS whatever the problem is within the community. The purpose of the model is to give participants the tools necessary to complete your own assessment through targeted activities.

It measures attitude, knowledge, resources efforts and activities of community members and leadership in order to assess a community's readiness to address an issue on 5 key dimensions.

I found that this model could be applied to any community or organizations that are looking to make positive change together as a community.

I have a powerpoint I can send to anyone that would like read more about it. This topic is way too extensive to go into detail.

All in all it was a great learning experience for me and I came home with a few more facts and less myths! I'm glad I took part as there is no other way to educate one's self then by participating in these workshops.

Best regards,
Terri Nolan

NAN LAUDS COURT ORDER FOR GOVERNMENT TO RELEASE RESIDENTIAL SCHOOL DOCUMENTS

January 15, 2014 , THUNDER BAY:

Nishnawbe Aski Nation (NAN) Deputy Grand Chief Alvin Fiddler and First Nation leaders welcome the Superior Court of Justice decision ordering the Government of Canada to produce documents to Claimants/Survivors and the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) relating to a 1990's criminal investigation into abuse at St. Anne's Residential School in Fort Albany First Nation.

Justice Paul Perell found that Canada "too narrowly interpreted its disclosure obligations", and that "there has been non-compliance [with the Indian Residential Schools Settlement Agreement], and Canada can and must do more in producing documents about the events at St. Anne's".

During the two-day hearing (Dec. 17-18, 2013) the federal government was challenged over its decision to withhold the extensive police files relating to sexual and physical abuse by former school employees. Beatings, rape and the use of an electric chair were documented by a five-year investigation by the Ontario Provincial Police which resulted in the criminal convictions of six school officials. St. Anne's Survivors have fought for the release of these documents after it was revealed that they have been in the government's possession since 2003.

"The Survivors of St Anne's acted in good faith when they agreed to take part in the Independent Assessment Process but the government's failure to provide this evidence to the claimants and independent adjudicators raised significant questions as to whether they would ever receive the justice they deserve," said Fiddler, who holds the justice portfolio. "This ruling ensures that the facts behind this terrible chapter in history are preserved and it is shameful that it has taken two court orders to compel the government to honour its obligations under this process."

ON Regional Chief Beardy Supports Grassy Narrows FN in Dispute with Ontario

THUNDER BAY, ON (January 9, 2014) — Ontario Regional Chief Stan Beardy stands behind Grassy Narrows First Nation in their longstanding clash with the province over a forest management plan approved by the Premier in December to further clearcut within the Grassy Narrows territory without community consultation or consent.

"It's absolutely imperative that the Ontario government maintain protocol regarding First Nation consultation as per the Canadian Constitution," said Regional Chief Stan Beardy. "First Nations in Ontario are still hoping that it can build a strong, trusting relationship with Ontario. Making unilateral decisions to harvest on traditional territory without a community's consent only further erodes the relationship."

Chief Simon Fobister of Grassy Narrows First Nation expressed his concerns in a December 23 news release following the approval of Ontario's forest management plan, which would take effect in 2014.

Chief Fobister said that province's logging plan will clearcut much of what mature forest remains on their territory, which raises concerns about facing another issue with mercury poisoning. Chief Fobister also said that further logging will erode Treaty rights, and will impact the families who depend on fishing, hunting and trapping. "Grassy Narrows is requesting a meeting with Ontario Minister of Natural Resources David Orazietti. I urge the Minister to meet with the First Nation to reach an understanding on how to move forward," said Regional Chief Beardy.

Called "the longest running Indigenous logging blockade in Canada," Grassy Narrows has spent nearly 15 years in court fighting the Ontario government's decision to issue a licence for clearcut operations in parts of the Keewatin portion of Treaty 3 territory. It led to a significant Ontario Superior Court decision in 2011 which ruled that the province cannot authorize timber and logging if the operations infringe on federal treaty promises protecting aboriginal rights to traditional hunting and trapping. This ruling has been appealed by Ontario and it is expected to be heard at the Supreme Court of Canada on May 15, 2014.

He was the son of Dinah Sheshequin

This was Uncle Fred's last trip with his bike to Thunder Bay, James Fletcher otherwise known as Uncle Fred.

Uncle Fred was a family member who lived every day to the fullest, from walking and riding his bike across the country, from learning everything possible and teaching the children as much as they could learn.

The story was told to me by my Father Allan Gagnon. My father was travelling to Thunder Bay on Thursday to a family wedding. Just as my father was leaving town, he came across Uncle Fred pushing his bike up the highway. He had made it to Fifth Line. My father had stopped to see where he was going. He said, I'm on my way to visit my brother John in Thunder Bay. He put his bike in the bush and told my dad, I have another bike in Thunder Bay, John has for me. My father told me it was very nice having to spend that time with him, since they hadn't seen each other in years. My father spent 7 days in Thunder Bay. On the way home, there was Uncle Fred starting his travels home to Sault Ste Marie. This time my father had made sure he sent all the luggage with my Uncle Ken, so he would have room for his bike.

This was Uncle Fred's last trip to Thunder Bay with his bike.

IN LOVING MEMORY
ROBERT ALBERT NOLAN

November 22, 1939
April 9, 1989

Born Albert Nolan(BOYGEE) to Emily and Dave Nolan November 22, 1939 in Lochalsh ON. The seventh child of what would be ten children in all, he had four brothers and five sisters. He worked as a guide and carpenter. He worked with the Indian Affairs in Michigan trying to teach the young natives their culture. As a young boy he enjoyed playing hockey, trapping and being a guide for people in the bush.

At the age of 17 a hockey scout came to him and wanted him to try out for the Red Wings Hockey Team in Detroit, Michigan in the USA. He was asked again when he was about 24 years old. Not many kids can say that about their dad.

So the USA is where he ended up starting his family once he met and married Lucinda Wellcome and together they had four children. First born was Robert H. Nolan followed by Colleen, then Marleen and last born was Mary, all whom he loved with everything he had. He and Lucinda were divorced, and his kids were temporarily taken away until he could provide a safe, sober, stable environment for them. He never gave up and did whatever he could to get his kids back. He worked on his alcohol problem for over a year before he could get us kids back only to raise us as a single father.

Members in Passing Memories

I was the youngest child of his but the first to give him a grandchild. I remember telling him I didn't know what to name my son so I let my dad name his first grandson. That's where the name Kenneth David Nolan came from.

Being his first grandson, he wanted him to play hockey, so at the ripe old age of 2 he had him out on the ice. I remember him teaching me how to skate, he would hold my hand and get the two of us going really fast or what seemed really fast and then he would let go and when I could come to a stop or fell he would start all over again. He never got mad when I couldn't do it, he just kept helping me. He was a good coach like that.

He had a lot of patience and he coached a hockey team in Alpena, Michigan for many years. He also played for the over forty team for many years too. He was a Right Wing and I believe he really had wings! Everyone that knew him said he was the type of man that would give the shirt off his back for someone who needed help. I think that's because of the help he received when he was in need, he was paying it forward.

A memory from his son Bobby was that of him taking him out hunting and telling him he has to be very quiet and then he would start coughing and coughed so hard his teeth flew out of his mouth and broke on a rock. And the hunting trip was over.

Another memory of his was when he was getting beat up from some neighbor boys and our dad came to his rescue! He sprinted across the field and grabbed them boys by the scruff of their necks, knocked their heads together and then took them to their moms. He was a hero like that, always there when we needed him.

He was like that for many people as he sponsored many people in the A.A. program. He was very active in this program for 16 years. If it was 6:30pm and dad wasn't home we always knew where to find him. And he was always taking us with him on Saturday night open meetings. I think he knew we would need this one day and of course he was right. Our father was a man of many things; a hard working, truly honest and devoted father, who never let us go without even when things were tough.

This reminds me of a story about Christmas. One Christmas morning there was a note under the tree, no presents, just a note that read: Santa's check never came but I love you and we will go shopping soon. I can almost tell you what I got that year because it was so special.

His second child Colleen remembers the day he walked her down the aisle. She would be the only one of his girls lucky enough to have that special day. And she was the second one to give him a grandchild, also a grandson. When he would keep the boys it seem like every time she would come and get little Robert he would be sitting right at his feet. He was never too far away from the grandkids if they were at his house.

His niece, Joan Nolan Tangie remembers him being a kind and gentle man with a big heart who always had room for her when she needed him. His other niece Sherri Copeland Black remembers a night when she was sleeping over and her and Colleen were trying to sneak out of the house. They thought he was asleep so they tied some sheets together and started to climb out the window from the second floor. Uncle must have heard us because he was waiting at the door. He told me to hurry up and get down so he could get back to bed and "I will be calling Mabel in the morning". He made Colleen and I clean the whole house for our punishment.

Carrie, our stepsister who our dad raised for many years remembers a day when we were out with dad and someone asked him who the red head was and he said my daughter and the guy said I can tell the other girls are yours but this one isn't yours, and our dad got a little mad and said yes she is and that is that.

But we all remember how he was at his happiest when he got visits from his siblings from Canada. The laughter of them sitting at the kitchen table was the best or when he would drive to the Sault just for a few hours because his brother Ken was gonna be there. He was all about Family. Family in Canada knew him as BOYGEE and the people in the USA knew him as CHIEF. Today he has 13 grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren and one more great grandchild on the way.

Concerning the Earth

ABRUPT CLIMATE CHANGE IN REAL TIME

Humans have benefited greatly from a stable climate for the last 11,000 years - roughly 400 generations. Not anymore. We now face an angry climate. One that we have poked in the eye with our fossil fuel stick and awakened. Now we must deal with the consequences. We must set aside our differences and prepare for what we can no longer avoid. And that is massive disruption to our civilizations.

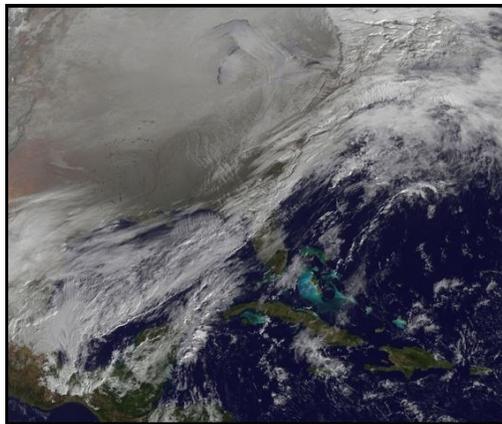

In a nutshell, the logical chain of events occurring is as follows:

A) Greenhouse gases that humans are putting into the atmosphere from burning fossil fuels are trapping extra heat in the earth system (distributed between the oceans (93%), the cryosphere (glaciers, ice sheets, sea ice for 3%), the earth surface (rocks, vegetation, etc. for 3%) and the atmosphere (only an amazingly low 1%). The oceans clearly get the lions share of the energy, and if that 1% heating the atmosphere varies there can be decades of higher or lower warming, as we have seen recently..

This water vapor rises and cools condensing into clouds and releasing its stored latent heat which is increasing storm intensity.

(B) (i) Rapidly declining Arctic sea ice (losing about 12% of volume per decade) and
 (ii) snow cover (losing about 22% of coverage June per decade) and
 (iii) darkening of Greenland all cause more solar absorption on the surface and thus amplified Arctic warming (global temperatures have increased (on average) about 0.17 °C per decade, the Arctic has increased > 1 °C per decade, or about 6x faster)

C) Equator-to-Arctic temperature difference is thus decreasing rapidly

NOAA's GOES-East satellite captured this photo of the polar vortex over the Northern United States on Jan. 6, 2014, at 11:01 a.m. EST

D) Less heat transfer occurs from equator to pole (via atmosphere, and thus jet streams become streakier and wavier and slower in west-to-east direction, and via ocean currents (like Gulf Stream, which slows and overruns continental shelf on Eastern seaboard of U.S.)

E) Storms (guided by jet streams) are slower and sticking and with more water content are dumping huge torrential rain quantities on cities and widespread regions at higher latitudes than is "normal".

F) A relatively rare meteorological event called an "atmospheric river" is now much more common, and injects huge quantities of water over several days to specific regions, such as Banff (with water running downhill to Calgary) and Toronto and Colorado events.

It is well past the time that politicians and governments need to act to address these issues. This breakdown of the global atmospheric circulation pattern is well underway now, with a global average temperature only 0.8 °C above the pre-industrial revolution levels. With extreme weather events this terrible now, it is highly irrational, in fact reckless, to continue to have global meetings and discussions about whether or not 2 °C is safe. Only 0.8 °C is wreaking havoc on global infrastructure today. As climate change proceeds and accelerates and we move further from the stable state that we are familiar with ("old climate") to a much warmer world ("new climate") we will experience worsening weather extremes and a huge "whiplashing" of events (throughout our present "transition period").
